Wire Frame – CSS Zen Garden – “Concrete Jungle”

For my CSS Zen Garden assignment, I will be doing a “Concrete Jungle” theme. This will utilize background images that include city skylines from around the world, murals, and graffiti. I’m excited to work on this project and I think that the Concrete Jungle theme will play out nicely. I actually had a tough time coming up with a theme for this Zen Garden since the actual content of the page doesn’t really have much to do with the color/theme of the page. It was almost like there were too many possibilities and it was tricky narrowing it down to one. This was good practice because I imagine this is a situation that you will run into as a web developer at least somewhat frequently, and it has improved my ability to explore different ideas. Planning out the design of your website with a well-thought out idea will make the implementation process so much easier, and I think it will result in a good-looking finished product with high usability.
